

many similar expressions in Genesis and 2 Samuel 11–15 collated by Benno Jacob,²⁸ the historical connections discussed earlier, and perhaps even U. Cassuto's tentative proposal that 20:1–18 parallels the Philistine capture and return of the ark in 1 Samuel 4–6.²⁹ This chapter on the date of the redaction has been by necessity extremely economical. Further research, it is hoped, will garner even more evidence and point out still other similarities, literary, historical, and otherwise, between Genesis and the United Kingdom.³⁰

³⁰ See, e.g., R. Alter, The Art of Biblical Narrative (New York, 1981) 117, 120, for connections between 1 Samuel 18 and Genesis 39 and between 1 Samuel 19 and Genesis 31.
